(4) Every compulsory supervision order shall be in the form prescribed in the Schedule and shall be issued subject to the prescribed conditions, provided that the Governor may waive any condition in the case of any particular prisoner.

(5) If a prisoner released under the provisions of a compulsory supervision order is convicted of any offence or fails to comply with any of the conditions of such order, the order may be revoked by the Governor.

(6) When any compulsory supervision order is revoked, the prisoner in respect of whom such order was made, shall, after undergoing any other punishment to which he has been sentenced, undergo a further term of imprisonment equal to the portion of his imprisonment remaining unexpired at the date of his release under the said order. For the purpose of remission, any sentence imposed on the prisoner while under the provisions of a compulsory supervision order and the period of imprisonment remaining unexpired at the time of his release under the order shall be regarded as one sentence.

(7) A prisoner released from prison after having been recalled to prison in consequence of the Governor having revoked his compulsory supervision order shall be released under the provisions of a compulsory supervision order for a period not exceeding twelve months from the date on which the prisoner is so released.

(8) Whenever a compulsory supervision order is revoked by the Governor the Magistrate shall, on production to him of a certificate of such revocation signed by the Governor, issue a warrant for the apprehension of the person in respect of whom such order was made; and such person on being apprehended shall be brought before the Magistrate, who shall make out his warrant for the recommitment of such person to undergo the residue of his sentence remaining unexpired at the date of his release under the order.
